MOST INVITING ENTERTAINING SPACE

Dixon Rye's Bradley Odom finds balance between timeless and trendy.

Bradley Odom became a design darling last year with the opening of his Westside store Dixon Rye (last year's Best of Design winner for best new home store), and he hasn't slowed down since. This dining room, one room in a Buckhead, Georgia farmhouse renovation, came about in 2015 "when our client contacted us to begin dreaming up the revitalization of the weekend home of his youth," says Odom. "A focus on gathering, entertaining and ease of transition between indoor and outdoor was paramount." The 16-seat dining room certainly accomplishes that goal, as does "refurbished furniture, family heirloom pieces and an extensive collection of curated, modern art," continues Odom, which naturally includes pieces from Dixon Rye. The large but still intimate space was inspired by a Miles Redd peacock fabric. Odom accomplished the comfortable vibe by "warming up the floors with a large sisal rug, a warm finish on the custom table designed locally in Atlanta from old Georgia oak trees and flanked host and hostess chairs," says Odom. *1085 Howell Mill Road NW, Ste.
