

ATLANTA HOMESTM OF LIFESTYLES

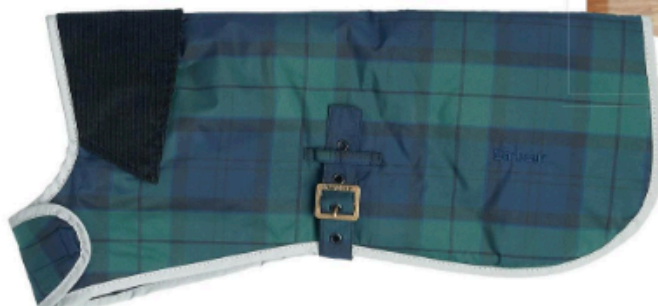

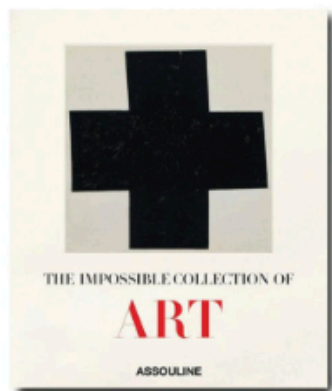

LIVABLE
LUXURY

BEHIND THE SCENES

MY MUST-HAVES

A go-to resource across the Southeast, designer and shop owner BRADLEY ODOM of Atlanta's treasured DIXON RYE shares his favorite things

Produced by THE EDITORS

Clockwise from far left: The Impossible Collection of Art by Assouline, available through Dixon Rye; The Barbour Wetherham Tartan Dog Coat in Classic Blackwatch Tartan; Tazuna fabric by Robert Kime; Tulipano Bowl in white by Paola Paronetto

taking shape "I go to France at least twice a year on buying trips. Last winter, I discovered one of our favorite new ceramicists, Paola Paronetto, while in Paris. She creates the most beautiful pieces from paper clay—a blend of paper pulp, natural fibers, and clay that results in an incredibly thin and light ceramic form."

paolaparonetto.com, dixonrye.com

seeing stripes "I'm slightly obsessed with Robert Kime's Tazuna fabric. We're currently using this in one of our projects as drapery in a formal living room. It's such a unique take on the stripe by alternating the colors and putting it on the bias. It's in a beautiful washed cotton linen so it perfectly balances the formality of the living room with the fun personality of the client."

robertkime.com

coffee table talk "I'm coveting The Impossible Collection of Art from Assouline. It's a book so special it needs to be displayed on its own and not downgraded to be in the middle of a stack. I imagine it being placed on its own easel, opened to a new piece of art daily." assouline.com, dixonrye.com can't live without "Other than my husband and dogs, it would have to be my art. I'm fortunate enough to have several Rocio Rodriguez paintings which I adore. Her work is incredible—truly a masterclass in color and texture. I discovered her work at my favorite gallery, Sandler Hudson, curated by my dear friend Robin Sandler."

rociorodriguez.net, sandlerhudson.com

date night destination "There's so much pomp and circumstance surrounding Valentine's Day out there so I typically prefer an intimate night in. Last year, I ordered the caviar and champagne service from The Buttery, one of our go-to spots in Atlanta. We lit candles and enjoyed a decadent treat around our coffee table. It was such a perfect night I'm thinking about making it an annual tradition." thebutterylove.com posh pooch "Both Stella Bates and Grayton Rhodes (my dogs) are wearing the Barbour Wetherham Tartan Dog Coat in classic blackwatch and we love them! They are really easy to put on which I think is important when on the go." barbour.com

PORTRAIT BY MALI AZIMA

