When it comes to Southern hospitality, Dixon Rye is about as stylish as it gets. With 20 years in the fashion and home industries, interior designer Bradley Odom has a well-trained editor's eye. So when he opened his luxe Atlanta-based storefront in 2015, he wanted to give the typical Southern sensibility a global, "well-traveled" edge. Here, classic pieces from brands like Astier de Villatte sit comfortably next to one-of-a-kind pieces he sourced from Europe, Asia, and Africa. A merry mix of Alpaca pillows from France, Italian dressers, and more, Dixon Rye makes it possible to shop your favorite travel destinations—no passport required. dixonrye.com
